

“We believe that every child deserves an opportunity to be healthy and to receive excellent, compassionate care. As an autism educator, Marcia knows how overwhelming it is for parents to receive an autism diagnosis for their child. We established the Early Support Program for Autism (ESPA) at Stanford to offer better support for these families.”

Marcia and John Goldman have generously supported our hospital, including its autism programs and facilities expansion. The new ESPA program at the Stanford Autism Center is providing guidance to help families navigate the critical period after receiving an autism diagnosis.
